Read the account below and answer the questions that follow.

As Clare Crockett was raised in a Roman Catholic family, she went with them every week to pray and celebrate the Eucharist in her local church. However, after her teenage years Clare stopped going to church each week. Her focus in life was on making a success of her job as a TV presenter and hopes of a film career.

Then Clare began to feel unhappy with life and started drinking a lot of alcohol and taking illegal drugs. At this time Clare's sister became ill and Clare agreed to take her sister's place on a visit to Spain. Clare found herself in a chapel on Good Friday where she was asked to kiss a crucifix. It was a simple gesture which made her feel the presence of Jesus in her life. Clare realised she needed to change her lifestyle and began to think more deeply about the religious side of her life. A year later, Clare decided to devote her life to Jesus and took vows to become a religious sister.

After Clare joined the convent she focused on spreading the teaching of Jesus, using the acting and singing skills she developed in her previous career. Clare discovered she had a particular talent for helping children who came from difficult backgrounds and caring for ill patients in hospitals. Clare went to work in South America, where she helped to run a school, giving children an education and their families extra support with food and medicine.

(a) State two ways Clare's faith changed according to the above account.

Change 1.

She found out that her faith was her vocation. She realised that the talents she had were good for being a religious sister and she truly wanted Jesus in her life.

Change 2.

She became more empathetic towards those in need. After the important milestone of her becoming a religious sister, she helped those in South America in need of help.

- (b) From your reading of the above account, explain how religion gave meaning to life for Clare.

Religion gave Clare meaning by giving her a vocation and a purpose. By her being in the religious sisterhood, she was given the opportunity to do something significant, help impoverished people in South America. All of that and, the sense of belonging that she would get from being in a group like that, gave her a purpose in life. A purpose in life is important because it helps shape a person's meaning in life.

Q2

- (a) Read the account below about a person's visit to a local graveyard and answer the question that follows.

I recently went to a graveyard with a friend to place flowers on their grandmother's grave. We were delighted to see how well the graves were being looked after. A lot of graves had large granite stones with the person's name, dates of birth and death written on them. A lady began speaking to a group who had gathered around a grave. A coffin, woven with reeds, was placed on the ground beside the grave. The lady called on different people in the group to share memories of the person who had died. One member of the group read a verse from the person's favourite poem. Then music started and a couple of people stepped forward carrying a small tree which they planted at one side of the grave. As the gathering parted, I could hear people talking about how the music reminded them of the person who had died. Others spoke about visiting the grave at a later time to water the tree and honour the memory of their friend.

From your reading of the above account complete the following sentences using the words from the box below. One sentence has been completed as an example for you.

~~Memories~~ Reeds ~~Stones~~ ~~Tree~~

(i) A lot of graves had large granite ... stones.

(ii) A coffin woven with ... reeds

(iii) The lady called on different people in the group to share ... memories

(iv) People stepped forward carrying a small ... tree

- (b) Outline what is involved in another example of a non-religious ceremony that marks an important event in a person's life.

Life event: Graduation (~~off second~~)

Ceremony:

When you leave a school, there is usually a big party thrown. It starts with a formal ritual of people in the school saying goodbye and some that are leaving giving speeches. After that, a party is thrown. Different families have different ways of celebrating. These include hiring a limousine, booking a restaurant, or just simply throwing a house party. This is significant because all of these rituals mark a milestone in a person's life that can lead to unsure times and stress, the party takes peoples' minds off of all of that.

Read the words of the song below and answer the question that follows.

'... Children are crying, soldiers are dying ...
Cause I know there's sunshine behind that rain
I know there's good times behind that pain...
I close my eyes and I can see a better day
I close my eyes and pray...
Can someone tell me how to make a change?'

- (a) In your own words, state how a person questioning the meaning of life can be seen in the song above.

A person questioning the meaning of life can be seen because they are questioning how they can make the world better, questioning the meaning of pain and death in the world.

- (b) Describe how a person questioning the meaning of life can be seen in examples of one of the following: ● Art ● Film ● Literature

Example 1: Literature - 1984
The meaning of life is questioned by Orwell in 1984 by questioning whether it is better to follow a society that is bad for many people, or to try and make a new one that's better for everyone. The main character starts off wanting to change the world, but he fails and by the end, he is brainwashed into accepting society as it is.

Q4.

Write an account of a person you have studied who found their purpose in life, eg...

Victor Frenkel, Oscar Schindler etc.....

The person I have studied is Oscar Schindler. Schindler was a German in WW2 and ~~was~~ planned to make a profit off of the suffering of the Jewish people. He moved to Poland, which had been taken by Nazi forces, and began buying Jewish people from the Nazis to work in his factories that made supplies for the war. He bought only the people he thought would do well in his factories, leaving many he didn't want. A significant milestone came one day when he saw many Jewish people being killed. He felt not just annoyed that he was losing factory workers, but sad that people were being killed. This is when he began to think his views were contestable. He began buying more Jewish people to save in his factory even if they weren't the best workers. He started sabotaging his products so that they couldn't be used by Nazis to kill people. He realised his purpose in life was to help the Jewish people who were being killed. He compiled a list of them to save. No longer caring about money or profit, he threw it all away to buy as many as he could. When the war was over, he was thanked by the Jewish people and when he died he received the highest honour of being buried in Jerusalem. His story is a very important one because it shows how people can change once they find their meaning and purpose in life.
